

Welcome to the home of automotive information, insight & intelligence

Not a member? Join here

Search news & insights...

Ford Motor Company is evaluating opportunities to import vehicles to China from the US

just-auto.com editorial team

News & Insights | Companies | Sectors & Topics | Buyers' Guides | Research & Intelligence | Jobs | Forums | Advertise | Help

just-auto home   News & insights   News

SWEDEN: European suppliers body says Saab seems in "negative spiral"

By: Simon Warburton | 18 April 2011

Saab seems in a "negative spiral" according to a pan-European suppliers body that is estimating the Swedish automaker will need hundreds of millions of Euros to survive.

Saab's Trollhattan factory is idle again today (18 April) as the manufacturer has its application for the site to be sold and leased back considered by Sweden's National Debt Office.

"With a very unclear ownership structure and no financial muscle, it seems they [Saab] are into a very negative spiral," European Association of Automotive Suppliers (EAAS) CEO Lars Holmqvist told just-auto from Brussels.

"The reason they are stopping is they have not paid their bills and will not get components. They are not selling cars and are making very big losses. Those losses mean you need hundreds of millions of Euros in your kitty."

The EAAS chief added Saab had never really made money, but had benefited from having "rich parents," while he doubted the "hard-nosed" Swedish government would help out.

Holmqvist noted reports Russian businessman Vladimir Antonov could step in, but the initial fund speculated about by the media would only see limited component supply.

"If it is right what is being reported, it means Antonov would go in immediately with SEK270m (US$43.2m) - that is not [enough] even to cover the debt owing to the suppliers," he said.

"It would not even help starting. It could release some components, but that is of course not [the] major problem."

Sweden's Enterprise Ministry confirmed to just-auto Saab had asked for its EUR400m loan from the European Investment Bank (EIB) to be changed to allow it to raise capital elsewhere.

The country has guaranteed the EIB loan and a Ministry spokeswoman said: "We need to be OK, give our blessing to see a change. Since they [Saab] have been a bit short in cash flow, they wanted to lower their loan and use that space to get loans elsewhere."

The EIB loan can only be used for certain environmental projects and not for everyday running of the business. Saab has asked the Debt Office permission to sell and lease back its property, although the government spokeswoman declined to give any amount this could raise.

"We like to look after the taxpayer's money and make as good as possible for Swedish companies - in this sense the Swedish car industry in general," she added.

The EIB in Luxembourg declined to comment on the matter when contacted by just-auto.

Sectors: Components, Financial, Service suppliers/supply chain, Vehicle manufacturers, Vehicle manufacturing

Companies: Saab

Login   Join now   My cart

Join just-auto today and save up to €105

As a member you'll have unlimited access to the latest auto industry news, insight and analysis.

Hurry - the offer ends this month

Join now >>>

just-auto's new
real-time research solution - available now!

QUBE is just-auto's new online research solution delivering a complete portfolio of up-to-date market and sector intelligence services. These combine breaking news, interviews, opinion, updated analysis and forecasts for all key component sectors, companies and markets.

MOST VIEWED   MOST SHARED   MOST BOUGHT

- THE WEEK THAT WAS: Saab and 'spies'
- SHANGHAI PREVIEW: SAIC revives British van
- JAPAN 'QUAKE': Toyota on half-rate till early June
- Proton secures GBP270m Lotus funding
- Bennett takes on product role at Volvo Car

View next/previous articles

- 18 Apr 2011 - COMMENT: Crunch-time for Saab
- Currently reading - SWEDEN: European suppliers body says Saab seems in "negative spiral"
- 18 Apr 2011 - JAPAN 'QUAKE: Toyota plants resume production
- 18 Apr 2011 - SHANGHAI SHOW: Ford JV considering own brand

There are currently no comments on this article
 Be the first to comment on this article

Related research

Saab 2010 company profile edition 2

This latest edition just-auto company profile is part of a major series of reports that will provide you with convenient and concise analysis on the world's largest component and vehicle manufacturers. Each individual company is profiled in a consist...

---

Intelligence set: Company profiles for the major vehicle manufacturers

This intelligence set packages together the latest 2009 editions of our company profiles covering the major vehicle manufacturers, using the latest and most up to date data available. It offers great value for money and contains essential information...

---

Global market review of automotive lighting – forecasts to 2015

Automotive lighting technology is evolving at an unprecedented and accelerating pace. As the techniques by which light is produced, displayed and distributed grow more sophisticated, so must the store of knowledge and the specificity of regulations. ...

Related articles

COMMENT: Crunch-time for Saab

These are worrying times for Saab. It doesn't get much worse than experiencing a liquidity crisis while you are still operating well below break-even.

SWEDEN: Debt Office meets to consider Saab property finance request

Sweden's National Debt Office is meeting today (18 April) in Stockholm to discuss Saab's application to use its property to release collateral.

THE WEEK THAT WAS: Saab and 'spies'

The two big questions as we lurched into this week were "What will happen to Saab?" and "What will happen at Renault?" One was answered, sort of.

- Home
- News
- Insights
- Companies
- Sectors
- Buyers' Guides
- Research store
- Jobs
- About this site
- My account

News

- Latest automotive news
- Hot issues
- Buyers' Guides
- News archive
- The Daily Bulletin
- RSS feeds

Insights

- Management briefings
- The just-auto blog
- Analysis
- Comment
- Interviews
- Editor's Weekly
- Highlights

Companies

- General Motors Company
- Ford Motor Company
- Toyota Motor Corporation
- Mitsubishi Motors Corporation
- Nissan

Sectors

- Aftermarket
- Commercial vehicles
- Components
- Electric drive
- Emerging markets
- Environment
- All sectors

Market intelligence

- Reports in focus
- By sector
- Company profiles
- Research links
- Jobs
- Jobs by category
- Featured recruiters
- Advertise your job

Company information

- About just-auto.com
- Contact just-auto.com
- Legal
- Privacy statement
- Membership terms

©2011 All content copyright just-auto.com.
 Published by Aroq Ltd. Address & registered office: Seneca House, Buntsford Park Road, Bromsgrove, Worcs, B60 3DX, UK.
 Tel: Intl +44 (0)1527 573 600. Toll Free from US: 1-866-545-5878. Fax: +44 (0)1527 577 423.
 Aroq publishes just-auto.com | just-food.com | just-drinks.com | just-style.com
 VAT No: GB785642391. Registered in England No: 4307068.

Select Language Powered by Google Translate